Course Description

Course Goals

The first goal of this course is to introduce students to classic and contemporary research in social

Computer Skill Requirements

All students should be comfortable and able to navigate on-line. If you do not have strong computer skills, I do not recommend taking this course. A basic level of computer skills is a prerequisite and I will not be teaching those skills in the course. If you have never taken an on-line course before I highly recommend visiting <http://www.ut-tulsa.edu/edu/help/faq/faq.html> to learn how to work with the on-line course system.

Tour of Our Class Home Page

These are the areas on our home page that you need to read to visit and learn to use:

- Assessments – This is the section of the class page to take practice exams. There will be 4 required Exams, each having a Practice Exam. I highly recommend that you take the first Practice Exam a week before Exam #1. The practice exams give you a good idea of how I will ask questions on the exams. In addition to showing you what the exam questions will be like, the practice exams are also useful as they show you the format that will be used for all exams.

- As explained in detail below, exams will be taken in the Department of Psychology Testing Room. When you are in the testing room on campus, you will log into our class page and find the exam waiting for you in the Assessments area. The exam proctor will open up the exam for you.
- Email Messages – This is where you can go to contact me. I will also send out emails periodically to individual students as well as to the entire class. This is the best email address to contact me at because I check it very frequently. Students emailing me at my main UT address typically wait longer for a response.

Help – This link will take you to other pages for assistance

- It is expected that you will plan appropriately so as to have your discussion postings and exams completed by the designated deadlines

Absenteeism: This is NOT a self-paced, self-timed course. This course is designed to be a successive progression from one chapter to the next. If you have an illness that interferes with your ability to participate or meet deadlines in this class, you need to notify me ASAP. Such events may necessitate your dropping the course. This is particularly the case with an on-line course like this which is not self-paced. I have found that, in such situations, it often works better for a student to drop a course and take it again at a later time, than to miss several days and then try to catch up the rest of the semester. If you students will be available on set times on exam days to register exams. All students are expected to take the exams on the main campus unless you live far from Toledo. If this is the case, you need to contact me ASAP about the test-taking. The testing room (University Hall room 5000) room will be open on Mondays from 11:00AM to 6:30PM and Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 9:00AM to 6:30PM (the lab is closed on Fridays). You do not need to reserve a time to take the exam, rather, you can simply arrive to the exam room during the exam time window on the exam days to take the exam. You will not be allowed to use notes, book, or electronic devices etc during the exam so you will need to prepare as you would for any other in-class exam. You will have 70 minutes to complete each exam. This gives you over 1

Make-up exam policy: Missed exams will result in the grade of "0"--and as noted above this "0" can be replaced by taking the Optional Exam. Under extraordinary circumstances, make-up exams may be given. You need to contact me in advance to request a make-up and
